WELCOME TO QUEEN STREET

A boutique flexible workplace in the heart of the City of London, with characterful private office spaces housed in a beautiful pair of Grade II listed properties.

28 Queen Street is situated centrally in the City, comprising of two Georgian buildings connected by an impressive central staircase. With office spaces spanning all five floors of the property, blending original features and contemporary design touches throughout, it's a workplace that inspires and engages you every day. It's not just office space on offer here, there's also a large boardroom-style space suitable for up to 14 people available to book on-demand. If you're looking for an office that's easy to reach, comes with bags of character, and features all of the amenities you need to thrive in business, 28 Queen Street is for you.

It's part of the Queen Street Conservation Area, which holds special interest in the area because of its longstanding historical associations with the Thames and industry in London. Queen Street was one of a few streets that was newly made after the Great Fire of London, providing a processional route between the Guildhall and the river. This area of the city was synonymous with the fur trade, and the remnants of its commercial history is evident in the notable collection of listed buildings and Livery Company Halls. Queen Street and its surroundings still retain their 19th century industrial character to this day.

28 Queen Street fits the bill from the outside, with stunning Georgian facades complementing the surroundings, and our refurbishments inside have respected the building's heritage. With preserved period features and sensitive design touches, it's unlike many other offices in the area that are lacking in character.

With unbranded, fully-furnished office space available in a wide range of sizes, it's a suitable new home for any business seeking a new workplace in the City of London.
